Commercial disputes.

Sarah undertakes work on a broad range of general commercial disputes, both UK and multi-jurisdictional, with particular expertise in pre-trial applications for urgent injunctive relief.

Sarah has extensive experience within the gambling sector, working for a variety of clients including UK and offshore bookmakers, operators of online sports content and gaming, and land-based casinos.

Part of her practice involves acting for clients in relation to competition law issues, including follow-on damages claims and enforcement of private rights under the EC and national competition rules. Sarah has recently worked on an OFT investigation into alleged anti-competitive practices.

Sarah has had a number of cases reported in the High Court. She also accepts instructions from firms overseas to conduct appeals before the Judicial Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council.

Sarah was a keynote speaker at the 'The English Law Week in Moscow', presenting on civil fraud claims in UK proceedings.

Sarah has a Diploma in UK Copyright and International Related Rights from Kings College London.
