agri environment issues

Ongoing reform to the Common Agricultural Policy further shifting the balance away from production subsidies towards measures which protect and enhance the environment together with recent changes in environmental legislation mean that the environment is an intrinsic part of farming practice.

Blake Laphorn has considerable experience in environmental matters and can advise on:

- water pollution
- agricultural waste
- environmental permitting
- nitrate vulnerable zones
- pesticides
- environmental liability
- renewable energy
- energy crops
- biodiversity
- agri-environment, conservation and woodland schemes
